

Will Rogers and Wiley Post Killed In Airplane Crash

FAMOUS COMEDIAN AND FLIER MEET DEATH NEAR POINT BARROW, ALASKA; BODIES ARE TURNED OVER TO MEDICAL MISSIONARY

Signal Corps and Coast Guard Headquarters Confirm Reports—Details of Monoplane Crash Are Undetermined As Yet—Brief Bulletins Are Received

(By International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 16—Wiley Post and Will Rogers were killed instantly at 5 o'clock last night when their monoplane crashed 15 miles south of Point Barrow, northernmost settlement in Alaska, according to a wireless received today by the U. S. Signal Corps here from Point Barrow Station. Sergeant Stanley Morgan, Signal Corps operator at Point Barrow, said that the bodies had been recovered and that they had been turned over to Dr. Griest, medical missionary at the tiny settlement.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16—A later message from the Signal Corps headquarters at Alaska also confirmed that the globe-circling pair had crashed and added that their plane crashed 15 miles south of Point Barrow at 5 p. m. yesterday. Both bodies have been recovered.

The text of the message received here by Chief Signal Officer of the Signal Corps from Point Barrow, read: "Post and Rogers crashed 15 miles south of here 5 o'clock last night. Both killed. Have recovered bodies and placed them in care of Dr. Griest. Standing by on anchorage hourly. Signed—Morgan."

Morgan is Staff Sergeant in charge of the Army Signal Corps at Point Barrow.

The Army Signal Corps message from Morgan was relayed from Point Barrow through the Signal Corps headquarters at Seattle. In relaying the message, Colonel George E. Kumpe, Signal Corps officer, added: "I am notifying Mrs. Post and Mrs. Rogers at once."

The War Department, the White House, the Office of the Chief of Staff, and other focal points, were deluged with telephone and telegraphic requests for confirmation of the tragedy.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16—The Signal Corps confirmed Post and Rogers killed in an airplane crash in Alaska.

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 16—Coast Guard headquarters here today confirmed a report that Wiley Post, famous airplane pilot, and Will Rogers, humorist and screen comedian, were killed in an airplane crash somewhere in Alaska. Coast Guard officials said they received only a brief bulletin saying the two were killed. The bulletin did not state where the accident occurred.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16 — The Army Signal Corps today confirmed the death of Will Rogers, humorist, and Wiley Post, noted aviator, in an airplane crash in Alaska.

Declare Quarantine On Morrisville Dogs

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 16—A quarantine on all dogs in Morrisville was declared this morning by the Morrisville Board of Health as a precautionary measure to prevent an outbreak of rabies in the borough. The quarantine will last 90 days.

During the quarantine no dogs will be permitted to run at large and Chief of Police Cooper will have orders to shoot any dog found roaming on the streets. Dogs will be permitted on the streets if they are muzzled and on a leash.

There has been an outbreak of rabies in lower Falls Township and the State Department of Health is expected to quarantine that district within the next few days as a precaution against the spread of that dread disease.

Two young children of J. Mason Custer, of Penns Manor, were given Pasteur treatment yesterday following wounds inflicted by a dog suffering from rabies. Several days ago three youngsters in the same section were also bitten by a dog suffering from rabies and were also given Pasteur treatment.

Dr. Fred Staley, state agent of the Bureau of Animal Industry, came here to direct the quarantine, and he indicated that if necessary he would order safeguards for this entire section.

The Misses Rita and Catherine Ferry, Pine street, and Theresa Singer, Buckley street, are vacationing this week in Wildwood, N. J.

Discuss Abyssinian Problem

Paris, France, Aug. 16—Italy, Britain and France today opened the conference on the Abyssinian problem with fading hope for a peaceful compromise rendered still more distant by Premier Mussolini's summary rejection of proposals advanced by Britain in preliminary talks. While Abyssinia watched from the sidelines, Captain Anthony Eden of Britain and Baron Pompei Aloisi of Italy met in the office of Premier Pierre Laval who has been thrust into the role of mediator. The delegates were reportedly finding difficulty in trying to reach a common basis even for discussion.

Mussolini telephoning from Rome turned down the modified British plan for economic concession in some territorial grants to Italy by Abyssinia, which scheme would not permit Italian colonization to the extent Il Duce seeks. Eden received orders from Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Minister, to strive once more to move Italy. British balks at any further yielding on Abyssinia's part. It is Laval's difficult task to try and bring the two foes as close together as possible and avoid any trouble that might affect the precarious European situation.

TWO PROPERTY OWNERS ASK $3,900 IN DAMAGES

Sellersville Owners Say Grade Change Damaged Their Properties

MAKE OFFER TO SETTLE

SELLERSVILLE, Aug. 16 — Two bills totaling $3,900 have been submitted to Borough Council, representing damages asked by property owners for changes made to their properties through the easing of a grade in the rebuilding of the Bethlehem pike.

The bills were under discussion at an adjourned meeting of council. Councilmen made counter-offers to both claimants, but refused to divulge the figures.

Claimants are Joseph Scholl and Paul Gaiser, both of whom live at the lower end of Sellersville. Scholl's property, once at the level of the highway, is now six feet above the grade.

Gaiser's bill is $1,100. He formerly had a six-inch curb between his property and the street level. The drop is now twenty-six inches.

The borough is responsible for all property damage within the borough limits, and the county for damages outside the borough, according to law, even though the work and grading was actually done by the state.

Council expects to hear from the claimants at the September meeting.

An ordinance was passed approving an application for funds from the PWA for the construction of Lake Lenape dam. This is to be forwarded to Harrisburg at once.

Council took action which will permit tax delinquents to work off their bills on a grading project at the catch basin. Approaches to the basin have never been graded since the recent enlargement and improvement of the water system.

Annual Parade of Firemen at Burlington

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 16—The annual firemen's parade will be held tomorrow with Council President, Neil Hancock as grand marshal.

Jack Conroy will marshal the 1st Division, forming on left side of High street; Thomas Gillette, 2nd Division, forming on Morris avenue; and Elmer Gares, 3rd Division, forming on 3rd street.

The siren atop the firehouse will sound off at 2:30 o'clock for formation, while the siren at 3 o'clock will be a sign for the parade to start moving over the following route: High to Federal to York, to Broad, stop at the Young America Firehouse; Broad to Talbot, Talbot to Union, Union to Tatham, Tatham to Pearl, stop at the Water Works; Pearl to Talbot, Talbot to Union, Union to High, pass the reviewing stand at City Hall, then on out to the firehouse and dismiss.

The firemen will be given refreshments at the firehouse at the end of the parade.

Judges in the reviewing stand will be Ex-Chief George Shumard of Burlington; Ex-Chief Theodore Pennock, Mount Holly; Ex-Chief Thomas Brown, Florence; Ex-Chief Charles Y. Kniss, Bordentown; and County Fire Marshal William J. Smith, Bridgeboro. William Schroeder is chairman of the firemen's parade committee.

The following prizes will be awarded: Largest company in line, best appearing company, company coming longest distance, best brass band, best drum and bugle corps, men; best drum and bugle corps, boys; best appearing ladies' auxiliary and auxiliary with most members.

JAPAN IS TAKING OVER LARGE SECTIONS IN ABYSSINIA, WRITER FINDS; COUNTRY HAS THUS BECOME OMINOUS FACTOR IN ITALO-ETHIOPIAN CRISIS

Intermarriage Plays Great Part in Welding of Countries

AID IS ALSO OFFERED

Japanese Said To Be "Working In" by Means of Gifts, Flattery

Why Japan has become an ominous factor in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis is told in detail for the first time by Edna Lee Booker, former correspondent of International News Service in the Far East, who recently visited Ethiopia on her way back to this country. In the first of a series on Ethiopia.

By Edna Lee Booker
(Copyright, 1935, I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 — (INS) — By intermarriage, with honeyed words of flattery, proffers of help in modernizing the army, supplies of munitions and gifts of mirrors, Japan is successfully gaining a foothold in Ethiopia which is beginning to alarm more than one European country.

It was on a cargo passenger boat in the Indian Ocean that I first heard of Japan's reapprochement in Abyssinia.

The second officer, who handled the cargo, was full of it.

We were taking many cases of Japanese dishes and glassware to Djoubiti, French Somaliland, for shipment to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. According to the officer, a few years ago there was practically no cargo from Japan for the ports of the Red Sea and the Mediterranean ports.

Today large shipments of Japanese arms and munitions, farming implements, general merchandise, silks, toys and carefully packed mirrors are being landed.

Mirrors, it seems, delight the Ethiopians, as did the strings of bright beads which the white men brought to the American Indians some three hundred odd years ago.

Vanity cases, trick affairs of lacquer and kings blue, with all the latest looking glass, rouge, lip stick and powder gadgets, go over in a big way with the Ethiopian flappers and are proving to be the most effective friendship promoters.

Even the untamed chiefs of some of the most warlike tribes have a weakness for the magic mirrors.

Four Members Describe Various Instruments of Government

GRANGE OPPOSES IT

LANGHORNE, Aug. 16—Discussions of the various constitutions of Pennsylvania were heard at a meeting of Middletown Grange held at Friends' School, here, on Wednesday evening. There were 18 members present.

Dr. H. C. Terry, in discussing the first and original constitution of Pennsylvania, explained that it went into effect 1776 and had but a single legislative body.

The second constitution was described by Mrs. Georgeanna Thompson, who stated that it was adopted in 1790. It provided for a Senate to the Assembly and also that the Governor be elected.

Frank Thompson, who spoke briefly concerning the third constitution, explained that it was accepted by the people in 1873 and at that time county officers were made elective.

The fourth constitution, the one now in effect, and which is under discussion, was discussed by Jesse Webster. The present instrument of State government among other things provided that the office of State Treasurer should be made elective.

The constitution was patterned after the United States Constitution, which served as the model.

During the discussions it was revealed that in 1921 the Grange as a whole was opposed to changing the constitution and that a constitutional convention which was scheduled was not held.

Governor W. E. Sproul headed the fight in 1921 for a constitutional convention for revision with the Grange leading the opposition. The proposition was defeated at the polls by an overwhelming vote.

It was also disclosed that the local granges, like the State Grange, are opposed to changing the constitution at this time.

Following the program, games were played and a social hour enjoyed. Announcement was made that the grange will meet August 28 at the home of Mrs. Hannah Pickering at Woodbourne.

Business Forges Ahead

Pittsburgh, Aug. 16—Resuming an advance that tapered off slightly last week, Pennsylvania business again forged ahead during the current seven day period with the majority of industrial lines participating in the uptrend, an International News Service survey revealed today. Recording its sixth consecutive weekly increase, steel ingot production led the advance, gaining two points to reach a national output estimated at 49 per cent of capacity. Operations are now reported at highest levels since the latter part of February. Although operations were somewhat weaker in the anthracite coal districts, the output in the soft coal fields increased as working schedules in several districts were advanced during the current period. Statistics available for the week ending August 10th showed a slight recession, then anticipated. While iron and steel operations held their own, coal output and carloading were down.

President at Hyde Park

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 16—President Roosevelt returned to his Hyde Park home, where he said, "it is cooler, as usual" than Washington, for a week-end rest. Leaving the train he held a brief conference which failed to develop much news. He appeared to get to his big estate on the Hudson and retire momentarily from affairs of state. Pressed about the demand Herbert Hoover made upon him to give the country a definite idea of just how far he intends to go forward revising the Constitution and concentrating further powers in executive branch of government, Mr. Roosevelt would only say he had read the former president's Chicago statement very hurriedly. The President also declined to comment on the new tax bill as passed by the Senate. He observed it still failed to clear the final congressional hurdle.

MORRISVILLE SCHOOLS HAVE 7 NEW TEACHERS

Fall Term Will Open On Wednesday, September 4, It Is Announced

GIVE TEACHER LIST

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 16—The Morrisville schools will open for the 1935-36 term Wednesday, September 4th, and will continue for 195 teaching days, closing Wednesday, June 24th. There will be only morning sessions on the first three days of school, but on the following Monday, full sessions will begin. This announcement was made at a meeting of the School Board held in Summerseat.

Seven teachers were elected, six to fill vacancies and the other to teach a special class as recommended by the State Department.

During the election of teachers, Leonard Ferry, a member of the board, objected very strenuously against the election of five of the teachers, without employing any of the four Morrisville applicants. The vote on these five was six to one, and on the teacher for the special class and home economics all the directors voted for them. The directors voting for the five teachers opposed by Ferry expressed the opinion that the qualifications of these five exceeded those of the local applicants.

The teachers elected are: Abraham Berger, Norristown, Pa., a graduate of Millersville State Teachers' College, to teach geography and algebra, and to coach soccer; Kenneth A. Miller, of Sunnyside, Pa., a graduate of Bucknell University, for the sixth grade vacancy; to teach arithmetic and health, and also to have charge of the sixth grade playground work; J. Wesley Brower, Philadelphia, a graduate of the Philadelphia Normal School and a student at the University of Pennsylvania, for the fifth grade vacancy in the William E. Case school; Alda E. Kulp, of Mifflinburg, Pa., a graduate of the Bloomsburg State Teachers' College, for the fifth grade vacancy in the Manor Park school; Mary Broome, of Shenandoah, Pa., a graduate of Temple University, for the first grade vacancy in Manor Park school; Mary Selby, of Oak Lane, Pa., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, for home economics; Millie B. Altrich, of Slaton, a graduate of West Chester State Teachers' College, for the special class.

NEW BUS LINE OPERATING HERE; DEL. COACH CO. OUT

Public Service Commission Orders Delaware River Coach Co. Off Road

NEIBAUER IS NEW LINE

To Operate Under Temporary Permit From The Commission

A new bus line went into service late yesterday afternoon between Torresdale and Morrisville. The Nebraska Bus Company placed buses in service under a temporary approval given by the Public Service Commission. The Nebraska Company now operates buses from McKinley to York Road and City Line.

The Public Service Commission handed down an order in which the Delaware River Coach Co. was ordered to discontinue service between Torresdale and Morrisville and over a certain route in Bristol. The reason given by the commission was because the coach company's equipment and service were "unsatisfactory."

The Delaware River Coach Company was hailed before the Commission in July, to show cause why its certificates of public convenience should not be revoked and cancelled for the "unsafe and inadequate condition" of its equipment and the consequent danger to the public.

Commissioner F. P. Gruenberg took the case under advisement after hearing testimony in his office in Philadelphia.

The bus line operated nine motor vehicles as common carriers for the transportation of persons, between Morrisville and Yardley; and between Morrisville and the intersection of Bristol Pike and Poquessing Creek. What disposition will be made of the line between Morrisville and Yardley is not known at this time.

Henpecked Husband Turns Tables in Fine Comedy Play

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 16—Henpecked husbands have existed since the institution of marriage was invented, and probably before, and will exist as long as man likes to live with woman. They are a perpetual source of amusement to everyone but themselves, and at King Hall, Andalusia, Martin Flavin, author of "The Criminal Code," uses one as the hero, in the play, "Broken Dishes," which will be presented to-night at 8:30.

Cyrus Bumpsted is the name of the long suffering husband, and he becomes a character with whom we can sympathize as readily as laugh at. For many years Bumpsted has smarted under the stinging lash of his wife's tongue, who is a perfect example of a vixen. Most men would have rebelled during the first year of marriage, but being essentially an easy-going creature, willing to undergo a mild form of torture as long as he is not engaged in open conflict, he has borne the vicissitudes of life with a shrew until he has reached the age when he is endowed with three daughters, one of whom desires to be married.

At this point, the well known worm turns. He himself is able to stand the persecution, serious and petty, of his termagant wife, but when it comes to his favorite daughter falling under the yoke, he rebels. While Mrs. Bumpsted is out making whoopee at the movies with the other two girls, Cyrus, though he is aware to the bottom of his quaking soul that he will catch perdition when she returns, marries off his favorite to the man she loves, his wife's special anathema.

While the father and the newly married daughter are awaiting the storm, in fear and trembling, the stranger arrives. This stranger is the man Mrs. Bumpsted might have married, which fact she uses as a stranglehold on poor Cyrus, for she thinks this might-have-been is a tremendously wealthy individual. Just what actually happens when Mrs. Bumpsted discovers what has occurred during her absence will cause many laughs and lead to a surprise ending.

Those in the cast are: Jenny Bumpsted, Hilda Leversidge; Myra, Dorothy Settle; Mable, Harriet Davis; Elaine, Ethel Hartman; Cyrus, Axel Kleinsorg; Bill Clark, George Knoll; Sam Green, George Tibbitts; Rev. Dr. Stump, John Ferguson; A Stranger, Connie Freiter; Quinn, Jack Wilkins.

The guest star on the program is John Healy, noted baritone of the radio, and formerly associated with the "Toy Theatre" of Atlantic City, N. J.

THE TOUCHY JAPANESE

The tempest in a Japanese teapot, over a flip cartoon in an American magazine which portrays the Emperor of Japan in something less than the attitude of deity ascribed to him at home, is another of those affairs of state which help to make foreign offices prematurely gray without amounting to a boot in Gehenna.

It is said that not more than 500 copies of the periodical are mailed to Japan, and presumably these go to Americans and others who do not regard the Emperor as divine and are not apt to be affronted by intimations that he is otherwise. It would seem that a Japanese who sincerely credits his ruler with attributes above those of ordinary men would hardly make an offense more offensive by taking a foreign caricature, which was not superlatively clever or biting or at all momentous, and which ordinarily would have been forgotten as rapidly as a reader could turn the page, and broadcasting it to the world. One can hardly be offended if one is unaware that offense is offered.

Which induces one to ask if they are indeed Japanese of genuine faith in the imperial divinity who advertise the Emperor's appearance in the funny page. Or is it someone whose ax is sharpened by international ill-will? Often in issues of this kind there are, as Wodehouse's Bertie is wont to remark, wheels within wheels.

G. M. C. DIVIDED

As the corporation's president, Alfred P. Sloan, cautions, the increased G. M. C. dividend reflects the directors' best business judgment only as of today. If the future fulfills the present's promises, well and good. If, however, there should be injected into the situation "at any moment unusual circumstances that can not be foreseen," in such event the directors "will not hesitate to reappraise their position and act accordingly."

One may assume that Mr. Sloan had in mind the United States congress, whose potentialities for creating "unusual circumstances" seem virtually unlimited. Of course, Mr. Sloan may have been thinking only of world conditions, droughts and wars and other unforeseeable things. Still, it would have been no more than natural if he had in mind Congress which is now playing with economic fire in the form of the new tax bill.

Even though voted with reservations, a G. M. C. dividend increase to an annual $2 basis is most heartening. Only yesterday, it seems, the wet blanket of depression was resting so heavily upon the country that nobody's spectacles were rosy enough to bring such news within sight. Dividends, it must be remembered, and jobs go along together.

As if Duce wouldn't consider a slice of British Somaliland to call off the war, it is probably futile to offer him the Virgin Islands.

With a one-mill coin in circulation, France would be in a position to play us a little something on account in our own currency.

Ten days after the news broke that Ethiopian tribesmen would lose lions on the foe, if Duce hadn't made Clyde Beatty an offer.

"Live dangerously," said Stevenson, who had never heard of backing out of a diagonal parking space without looking around.

CHAPTER XXXIII

Bannister, who had lashed himself into a white fury at the thought of what Whipple's crowning act of infamy might be, gradually grew grimly cool. "Give me your note book, Toole," he said.

The detective drew a little green volume from his pocket and rifled it down toward the middle. Here he paused to read. "What do you think my last assignment was before I horned into the Sire case?" he asked.

"Kacketoer murder?" Dick replied at a hazard.

"No. I had to pinch a guy who stole a rubber doormat from an apartment house."

The little stratagem was successful—Bannister laughed. "Well," he said, "just make a note that we're heading to Whipple's camp. I'll put it in Bully's collar and send him back to the Abbe. That will keep the record to date in case we fail to return."

Toole silently scribbled a few lines in the book, closed it and handed it to his companion. But it took a long time to persuade Bully to start on his mission. A hundred yards up the trail they saw the dog pause with his head in the air, gazing at the plume of smoke that now rose straight and thin above the Abbe's hut. One long, heart-dreaded howl escaped the faithful airdale and he was on his way.

For a half hour Bannister and Toole had been weaving down the boulder-strewn trail leading to the Whipple camp when both paused suddenly and listened.

"Sounds like wolves," said Toole finally.

"Wild dogs!" was Bannister's guess. He had met this breed of vermin in the sheep country of Australia and had heard that they had become a pest in certain parts of northern India.

The yipping, yelping and barking that first assailed their ears grew more distinct. "Hungry pack chasing something—or somebody," he continued. "Seem to be headed this way. With empty bellies they're bad actors. Haven't even got the discretion of wolves. Give me a leg up this boulder and I'll see if I can spot them."

Toole helped Dick to reach the top of a shaft-like monolith that presented three naked sides about ten feet high and ended with a table having five-foot angles.

"They're coming this way, hell-bent!" he called down presently. "Take hold and I'll pull you up." Dick extended his gunstock to the detective and dragged him to the top.

"Must be a hundred of 'em," Toole puffed.

"Less than a dozen," Bannister answered, using his glasses. The pack was now a quarter of a mile from their refuge and stalking directly toward them in full cry.

For another minute they watched the fuming, skittering brutes, then Dick gave a whistle of amazement. "A red chow out in front!" he yelled. "And it's wearing a green collar!"

"You're right!" said Toole excitedly, glancing through his own glasses.

"Karen Sire's dog gone native!" spluttered Bannister. "Either that or the others are trying to make a meal of him. Good heavens, Toole, where can Karen be?"

He stood up at full height on the shaft and roared: "Napoleon! Napoleon!"

The chow, twenty yards in front of the pack, turned and made for the boulder, running as only a fear-smitten creature can that believes its life is forfeit.

"We can't get 'Nap' up here," said Dick swiftly. "Let's jump down and fight 'em!"

In their hike down trail Toole's eye had plucked a wicked looking shrub that resembled an Irish blackthorn and, with Bannister's hunting knife, he had cut for himself a "fine bit of a stick." This was between his teeth when Dick had dragged him to the top of the rock. Now, at his friend's warning that the fight would have to be made in the open, he let forth the old battle cry of Hells Kitchen: "Whee-oh! Whee-oh!" and leaped from his perch. The thud of Bannister's feet outside beside him a moment later, as Napoleon, with tongue hanging like a red shirt over a window still, flung himself behind the protecting bodies of the two men.

Bannister shot the leader of the pursuing pack, which turned a sanguinary somersault in death throes. Clinging his gun, Dick went into action with Toole. The detective seemed to be in his element, rushing into the very center of the pack and flailing out with his thorn-spiked shillalah. One lean brute, denuded of hair from mange, was almost at Bannister's throat when Toole fetched it a lethal kick.

Finding the gun too cumbersome for battle at close quarters, Bannister dropped it and jerked out his big automatic. The wild dogs seemed absolutely fearless. "Back up against the rock, Toole!" Dick shouted, "or they'll pull you down!" At the same moment he fired at a ragged mongrel that was attacking the detective's thick leaved boot.

"Look's like we'll have to kill 'em all!" yelled Toole. "Game, ain't they?"

Game, indeed they were, if that could be said of famished brutes carrying their attack with confidence born of numbers and the blind fury of hunger.

Toole had fought his way back to the rock and was standing at one of the three facets, laying about him with undiminished vigor, while Bannister, relieved of the fear of shooting his companion, kept on firing and kicking out with his long right leg to repel the dogs that came nearest him.

Then something totally unexpected happened. The chow, which had been cowering abjectly since the first onslaught, suddenly felt the stir of his own fighting spirit. With a snarl like a wild thing, Napoleon entered the fray, selecting as his special enemy a huge, short haired brute with the ears of a hound and the undershot jaws of a bulldog. A half dozen of the loathsome creatures were strewn about the boulder, dead; others, maimed by the terrific blows of Toole's stick, had come out of action and were retreating. The big fellow, however, more cunning than the others, had managed to elude the detective's stick and Bannister's bullets. He was still in good fighting form when "Nap" went to grips with him.

"Let 'em fight it out, Toole!" Bannister called from his side of the rock. "Bully would never forgive me if he knew about this little shindy." Dick was putting a fresh clip in his pistol as he spoke. Soon a more deliberate fire cleared the field for the chow and his antagonist.

"Must be something of the sheep dog in these chows," said Bannister. "Napoleon is trying for a back hold."

"He'll make it, too," the detective answered. Then, suddenly: "He has made it!"

What Toole said was true. The chow, leaping into the air, a dozen times, had finally come down on the flanks of the wild dog, seizing the brute's back. A crunch, a howl and it was all over for the wild dog.

Toole moved about the grisly scene with a haunting fear that had been suspended by the savagery of the fight and his own wild joy of battle. He knew that Bannister temporarily numbed to all other than these same emotions, would soon repeat the question that had sprung to his lips at the first sight of Napoleon and the pursuing pack. Terror gripped him. Toole turned and looked into his friend's face, drawn now and pinched with an anguish that could speak only through his eyes.

"Where is Karen Sire?"

The question did not come from Bannister. It crept out of Toole's chilled heart and entered his brain from within; it came in a dire whisper through the air, it assumed life before his eyes and leered at him. He did not dare to speak—a word would crack his stricken friend as a hammer often shatters a stone.

The detective saw Bannister's gaze wander to the leopard pelt and to the bloody things strewn about; saw him reach down and pat Napoleon's head; saw him suddenly become erect; only to sink slowly to the ground, the dead eyes of that ghastly shambles seeming to watch him—mock him.

Bannister had cracked. The oaken frame and the iron nerve that had withstood a thousand shocks were overwhelmed by the same hideous

GLAD AUTO RACES WERE POSTPONED

Owners of two fast automobiles, Sexton Perriman, of Clifton, N. J., and Bill Lehart, of Norristown, possess hearts that were gladdened when Ralph A. Hankinson deemed it inadvisable to allow the nation's leading speed merchants to risk their necks on the slippery surface at Langhorne Speedway last Sunday.

Neither the Perriman nor the Lehart car would have been ready for last Sunday, but now both machines are in tip-top shape for the gruelling speed wars to be waged this Sunday afternoon on the magnificent mile course located on the Lincoln highway between Philadelphia and Trenton, N. J.

Perriman's car was involved in a two-car wreck at Lewistown, Pa., last Saturday, and it would have been impossible to straighten out the machine for last Sunday's events. Since then, however, Perriman has had a crew busy making necessary repairs while he has been scouring the country for a driver capable of handling the machine.

Perriman's Miller is the car Billy Winn drove to seven straight victories last season. Winn drove it in two races this spring and then gave it up to supervise the building of his own new Miller. Since Winn quit the wheel, Perriman's car has been received from the New Jersey speed center, it is reported that George Baringer, famous Texan who quit the Rangers to drive racing automobiles most likely will handle the controls at Langhorne.

Lehart's car was put out of commission at Langhorne last Saturday when Wes Johnson, of Lansdale, took a fast lap without sufficient oil and lost a connecting rod. Lehart's car is a new Riley Special and Johnson is of the opinion he will give some of the nationally known drivers a surprise when he moves postward, Sunday.

TOP ROCK WILL MEET TWO LEADING LOOP NINES

The Lambertville Top Rock Club may be in fifth place in the standing of the Delaware River League but it may be the deciding factor in the second half race of the circuit. The Lambies are booked with the two leading teams of the loop over the week-end and the type of ball played by the Sheppards may decide the issue as the schedule ends over the week-end. Edgely will be the only club in this vicinity home over the week-end playing Hulmeville A. A. Sunday.

Tomorrow the Jersey Club meets the Edgely Braves on their home diamond. In their last meeting, Edgely won, 3-1, in a game which broke the time record of the Delri river, it requiring but one hour and thirteen minutes to complete the contest. In previous meetings, the Lambies had the knack of triumphing over the Braves, causing them to lose the first half.

"Sandy" Godown will hurl for the Jerseyites tomorrow, with Jake Prun doing the mound duty for the Hibbsmen. Godown and Prun were the hurlers in the 3-1 fray. Sunday, the Lambertville club meets the Dolington Cornhuskers at Dolington. Dolington at the present time is in second place. A double win for the Lambies will give the second half lead to the Braves; with Morrisville the only club having a possible chance to deadlock the half.

Manager Harry Sheppard will send either Russ Stout or Johnny Borroughs against the Dols. Stout beat the Dolington outfit but of the first half championship by scoring a close 2-1 victory. Manager Jack McGary will save his mound ace, Chapple Mat thews, for the Jerseyites, using Snow tomorrow. The Cornhuskers are weakened by the loss of Carmen Gagliardi who was declared ineligible because of participating in other Sunday games other than with his team.

Morrisville still is in the run for the second half pennant chase and needs a twin victory to pull it through. The Hoopers meet Hulmeville Saturday and play Washington Crossing on the Sabbath Day. In the event of a deadlock for first place, Morrisville has a postponed game to play with Hulmeville.

Games are scheduled to begin at three o'clock sharp.

BOXING MANAGERS WILL MEET TONIGHT

All boxing managers of Bristol and vicinity who wish to enter their fighters in the next boxing events of the St. Ann's Athletic Association are requested to be present at the St. Ann's club-house tonight at seven o'clock.

Any youth of Bristol over eighteen who wishes to train in the St. Ann's gymnasium is asked to report to Sammy Moffo at once. Instructions will be given in boxing and wrestling to the proteges. The next boxing bouts are scheduled for Monday evening, August 26th.

Wightman Cup Hope

By BURNLEY

One of the stars of Uncle Sam's defending Wightman Cup team is the youthful Carolin Babcock, California girl who now rates as the third ranking player of the country, and hopes to better that rating by her play in the Wightman matches and in the forthcoming Nationals at Forest Hills.

The olive-skinned Californian has been trying to regain her best form after being forced into retirement last winter due to trouble with a tooth. Carolin finally had the troublesome molar yanked, but now that she has returned to competition she has been hampered somewhat by a strained tendon in her ankle. However, the wiry Coast gal says she feels fine now, and expects to show her real game in the coming tests.

Carolin's greatest triumph was her straight set defeat of Helen Jacobs in the final of last year's Seabright tourney. In that match, Miss Babcock gave a really brilliant exhibition, and experts freely predicted that she would be America's top ranking player within a couple of years.

Much was expected of her this year, and it will be unfortunate if her enforced lay-off prevents her from attaining her peak in time for the Nationals.

The Los Angeles star has one of the best rounded games of any girl now playing, and her repertoire of strokes is amazing—in fact, her main trouble is that she has too many strokes.

The most-coached player in the country, Miss Babcock tried so many different styles of play that she became bewildered; so she sensibly decided to oblige coaches and rely upon her own judgment.

However, that famous master mind, Mercer Beasley, is still hovering in the background, and Carolin is supposed to be one of the Beasley proteges. (Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Lower Bucks Games Are Called Off By Rain

The games of the Lower Bucks and Bristol Twilight leagues, scheduled for last night, were called off because of rain. No league games are scheduled or tonight as the third annual 'dream' game is scheduled between the stars of the Lower Bucks and the stars of the Bristol Twilight League. Dave Landreth will manage the Bristol Twilight League team, while the manager of the Lower Bucks club will be picked at the game.

The fray is scheduled to begin at 6.15 sharp. All players and umpires of the loops are requested to be on hand at the starting time.

SATURDAY EVENING TILT PLANNED BY LANDRETHS

Experimenting with a Saturday evening contest, the D. Landreth Seed Company baseball nine will play the Feltonville Aces on Leedom's field, tomorrow, the game beginning at 5.30 o'clock. All previous Saturday tilts began at three o'clock and Manager Dave Landreth feels that a twilight game will be much better for the ball fans of this vicinity.

The Aces are well known in this vicinity and play most of their frays with the teams of the Quaker City League and such clubs as Roxboro, East Phillips, Wentz-Olney, and the Philadelphia Italians. According to Booking Agent Eddie Gottlieb, the Feltonville club is considered one of the best independent teams in the city.

Manager Landreth will start Eddie Sullivan on the hill and have Sid Purcell behind the plate. The remainder of the "Farmers" lineup will have Bruce, Heftman, Rockhill, Gotwald, Barrett, Hines, and Hibbs or Dugan.

A large crowd is expected to see the Seed Packers go after their fifteenth victory of the campaign. This is the only time the Landrethmen will be home over the week-end, playing the Mount Holly team at the Jersey borough, Sunday.

GRAND SLAM'S TEST COMING IN "HOPEFUL"

By Lou Bindman

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(INS)—Out of a maze of erratic two-year-olds, the colors of Bomar Stable fluttered to victory in the recent Arlington Futurity at Arlington Park, Ill., and now the question has arisen whether Grand Slam, the triumphant color-bearer of that Detroit racing establishment, is really a true top-flight juvenile or just a lucky equine.

Or perhaps a superior mud runner. It was over a rain soaked course that the chestnut son of Chance Play galloped to his surprise victory which netted a cut of $5,135 to his owners, Charles Bohn and P. A. Markey, from whose names is derived the composite title of Bomar Stable. In his devouring stride he humbled fourteen other juveniles, composing the greatest aggregation of baby stars this year. Behind him finished such speedsters as Marshall Field's Tintagel, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Valedictorian, Thomas C. Worden's Nedrow, Everglade Stable's Deliberator, Coldstream Stud's Coldstream, Ogden Phipps' White Cockade and others generally regarded better than the Bomar colt.

When holders of win tickets on Grand Slam drew up to the payoff windows, they received the gratifying sum of $65 for every $2 investment.

Interested observers, however, are concerned with more than the mutual payoff. They seek the answer to the colt's true ability in an effort to measure his prospects in the animal race for juvenile title honors.

Although in the Arlington Futurity win Grand Slam defeated some of the strongest contenders in the championship race, he did not clinch the title. He did, however, take a long stride in that direction for that was a race generally regarded as one of the chief tests for the leading position. Including purse snatchings in some earlier victories in events of lesser importance, the Chance Play offspring has captured a total of $55,110.

Grand Slam will have another opportunity, in a race as outstanding as the Arlington Futurity, to prove his Illinois score was no fluke. He is nominated for the Hopeful Stakes, scheduled to be run at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., on Aug. 31. This is the only Spa stake for which the Bomar colt has been named and in it will be another grand collection of speed demons for him to face. This prize is a highly coveted one, frequently producing the favorite for the following year's Kentucky Derby.

PLYMOUTH, N. H.—(INS)—There "ain't no such animal," says you. But "there is," says Mrs. Frank H. Smith. And to prove it she'll exhibit the ten doors in her kitchen. Of course she isn't counting the three cupboard doors which are sandwiched between the others.

continued to operate buses last evening but discontinued this morning. Officials of the Nelbauer Company state they intend to operate four buses here for the present. "The buses are about two years old, but it is the intention of our company to put new equipment into service, as soon as it receives permanent approval of the Public Service Commission," said an official.

Application for the Commission's temporary approval was made by Ethel Nelbauer for the Nelbauer Bus Company.

The Commission gave its temporary approval of the right to transport persons on schedule between the intersection of Bristol Pike and Poquessing Creek, Bensalem Township, and a point on the Pennsylvania-New Jersey State Line in Morrisville, and also over a route in Bristol Borough and Bristol Township.

The temporary approval was ordered by the chairman of the Commission and the application for permanent approval will be presented for consideration at the next executive session of the Commission.

The routes outlined are as follows: Beginning at a point in Bristol Pike about 250 feet south of where the pike crosses Poquessing Creek, Bensalem Township; thence along Bristol Pike through Andalusia, Cornwells Heights, Edgington and Bridgewater in said Bensalem Township; thence along West Bristol, in Bristol Township, to Bristol Borough; thence along Otter street to Mill street; thence along Mill street to Radcliffe street, thence along Radcliffe street to Jefferson avenue; thence along Jefferson avenue to Pond street; thence along Pond street to Farragut avenue; thence Farragut avenue and State Highway Route No. 13 to the Borough limits; in the said Bristol Borough; thence along said Bristol Pike through Edgely, in said Bristol Township, to Tullytown Borough; thence along Bristol Pike through Wheatshaf and Penn Valley to Morrisville Borough, in Falls Township; thence along Philadelphia avenue to South Pennsylvania avenue; thence along South Pennsylvania avenue to Bridge street; thence along said Bridge street to the Pennsylvania-New Jersey State Line on the Lower Delaware Free Bridge, said Morrisville Borough, and return (being in Bucks County, Pennsylvania).

From the corner of Pond street and Wilson avenue in Bristol Borough, along Wilson avenue to McKinley avenue; thence along McKinley avenue to Farragut avenue; thence along Farragut avenue to Pond street; thence along Pond street to Jefferson avenue; thence along Jefferson avenue to Garden street; thence along Garden street to Beaver street; thence along Beaver street to Pond street; thence along Pond street to Mill street; thence along Mill street to Otter street; thence along Otter street to the Borough limits in Bristol Borough; thence along Bristol Pike to State Highway, Route No. 13; thence along State Highway Route No. 13 to State Road; thence along State Road, Cedar avenue, Croydon; thence along Cedar avenue to Bristol Pike; thence along Bristol Pike to Newport Road at Croydon Station of the Pennsylvania R. R. Company in Bristol Township and return (all of said route being in Bucks County, Pennsylvania).

"TIGER" DOG SHOT

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—(INS)—A wild dog with a head 10 inches long and a body seven feet long was shot at Brayton, New South Wales, after the sheep farming districts of Brayton, Telling and Marulan had been terrorized for more than five years. At first glance, the dead animal resembled a tiger for it had long fawn-colored hair and sharp claws. When living, it stood 3 feet 6 inches high.

FASHION FOR SLIP COVERS BRINGS OUT BRIGHTER COLORING

By RHANDENA A. ARMSTRONG
(Home Economics Representative)

For many years slip covers have been considered a sort of smock for chairs and sofas to protect them from dust and too hard wear.

These coverings, at first, were made from dull colored materials but as gay prints, chintz, cretonnes, and linens came into vogue, a few brave makers tried out these more colorful materials. They proved serviceable, and the rooms became more cheerful and companionable.

Today, the loose fitting covers have become more tailored and better fitting. Chintz is still popular for slip covers but many new fabrics are leading this season, such as firmly woven homespun in stripes and plaids, cottons in diagonal weaves, sail cloth which comes in many lovely colors, and block printed linens, always cool looking. Weltings are given much prominence this season. These should be chosen to repeat and stress the dominant color of the material.

The companion idea is used extensively. The over-drapes and a chair may be of the same design and material. Two chairs may be of the same fabric material but one plain, the other figured. Trimmings also are used to tie the furnishings together, particularly with the ball and pendant idea.

600 MILES IN BARROW

MELBOURNE — (INS) — Two musicians of the municipal band of Brighton are on a 600-mile journey to Sydney—one in a wheelbarrow, the other pushing it. William Armezurt, horn player in the band led the drum major, William Darwin, $500 that he could not push him in a wheelbarrow to Sydney in 10 weeks. Last month, Tom Parkinson, wagered that he would push Tony Evans, in a wheelbarrow 50 miles, in eight days. He won with 40 minutes to spare.

HIS TINY ARK

SYDNEY — (INS) — Gordon J. Doherty, 25, left Sydney in a 16-foot boat equipped with a 2½ horsepower engine, for a 4,000-mile sea trip. His sole companion is his dog. He is on his way down Australia's eastern coast to Tasmania. After circum-navigating the island he will return all the way to Sydney. Last year, he made a 1,600-mile trip down the River Murray from Albury to Adelaide, in a canoe. It took 215 days.

Japan Taking Over Large Sections in Abyssinia

Upon further inquiry, I learned that the so-called tales were basically true.

About two years ago the foreign minister of Abyssinia placed at Japan's disposal some 400 hectares of land for experimental cotton growing and since then has given her many hundred additional acres.

Last year Tokyo signed an immigration treaty permitting the immigration of many hundred Japanese cotton workers.

A little Tokyo is growing, like a mushroom, in Ethiopia, and Japanese merchants, industrialists, farmers and school teachers are adapting themselves to life there.

Also the rapidly growing friendship between the two countries is encouraging intermarriage.

A bright spot light has suddenly been turned on little known Ethiopia. With her great undeveloped resources, with her lakes which are the source of the Nile, with her strategic position, there is no doubt that Japan's peaceful invasion of the country is a matter of growing concern to England, Italy and France. And hence Japan's entrance into the Italo-Ethiopia relations picture.

Tomorrow, Miss Booker tells of the place of women in Ethiopian life.

HERE'S PROOF that DODGE costs less to run than Small, Competitive Cars!

"This big, roomy Dodge," says Frank F. Hill, East Orange, N. J., "began to show 22 miles to the gallon of gas. And its savings on oil are truly astonishing. I figure the economy features will save upwards of $100."

"Dodge stands out in any company and best of all, it gives 2 to 5 more miles per gallon of gas. Who doesn't want a car that's so good looking, and at the same time so economical?" says Miss Lucille Brokaw, popular member of the metropolitan, younger set, of Long Island and New York.

FROM all over town, Dodge owners report 18—20—22 miles to the gallon of gas! And that isn't all. "Oil consumption practically nil" . . . "used practically no oil on my trip" . . . these are typical statements made by owners of this money-saving Dodge.

Come in. Drive the new Dodge. Thrill to the new "Air-glide Ride." You seem to float along . . . skimming over rough spots. See the sturdy, safety all-steel body . . . and genuine Dodge hydraulic brakes that give you quick "straight-line" stops.

Yet, for all these advantages, the New-Value Dodge delivers for just a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars! Come in and see how much more it gives you for your money . . . today!

Come in and see how
DODGE saves
you money!
